

Objectives and expected outcomes of the meeting

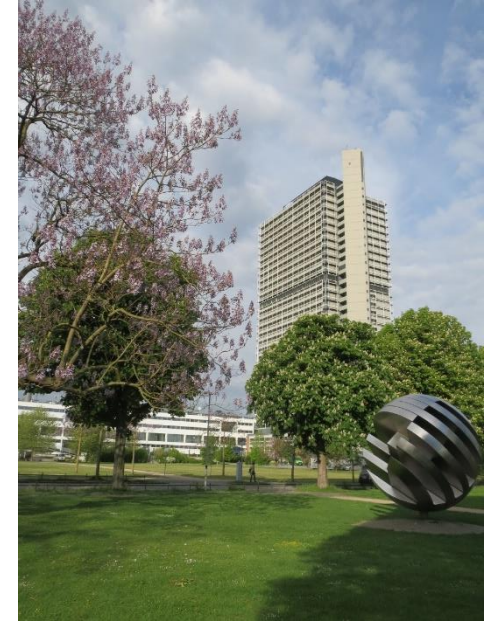

Dr Irina Zastenskaya

WHO European Centre for Environment and Health

European Centre for Environment and Health

- Established in 1991, ECEH is part of the WHO Regional Office for Europe and is located in Bonn, Germany.
- Operates as a centre of scientific excellence of WHO/Europe
- Focus on the implementation of the EHP and specifically the Ostrava Declaration.
- Through the EHP, WHO ECEH provides overall strategic guidance and sets implementation priorities for the reduction of environmental health risks in the European Region.

Programmatic and technical areas of work

Living and working environments

- Air quality
- Chemical safety
- Environmental noise
- Environmentally sustainable health systems
- Workers' health

Water and climate

- Climate change and health
- Water, sanitation and hygiene

Environment and health impact assessment

- Economics of environment and health
- Environment and health impact assessment
- Urban and built environments
- Waste management and health
- Industrially contaminated sites
- Environmental health inequalities

Second but most meaning meeting defines ways for the further implementation of the project /biocides management in Ukraine

(most important outcome)

Objectives

base-line situation analyses and gaps to be addressed to reduce biocides health risks

- Biocides definition
- To finalize the situation assessment made by international experts
- To summarise gaps identified in comparison with previous practise and good international practise

Tasks

- To share information on approaches to regulate pesticides and disinfectants
- To discuss the national situational analysis
- To consider approach to regulation of pesticides and disinfectants in short- and long-term perspectives
- To define steps forward to ensure the project implementation and input in the implementation of sound management of pesticides and disinfectants in Ukraine

Thanks for your attention

zastenskayai@who.int

